Hi guys. Part 6 already....nice! It seems the first 3-4 pages of every newly opened EE thread are full of PPR self-prophecies. I should join the bandwagon.

So here goes. Before we get to:

Page 400, my PPR.

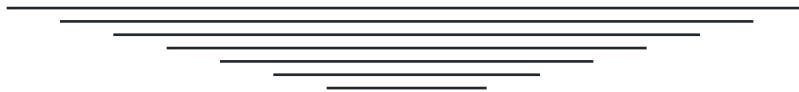

Page 450, my COPR.

Part 7, smooth landing+great job+great city+meet some NL folks

This matter was tackled in part 5 and the final consensus is; upload only your current valid passport data page and visa/stamps in the current passport..

Hello everyone, I'm quiet new here, pls I need your suggestion on this case

To go straight to the question, I am a prospective applicant for Canada express entry, recently, I got to find out my Estranged husband got married in the US without proper divorce from me. However, I am not interested in implicating him as we have a child together. We are still legally married in my home country.

The question is, can I proceed with my application for the express entry as married but spouse not accompanying? He is willing to give PCC and medicals, but is it going to implicate him ? I learnt also that he is applying for green card over there as well?

I don't want to proceed with divorce because of our kid. Is there any way to go about this?

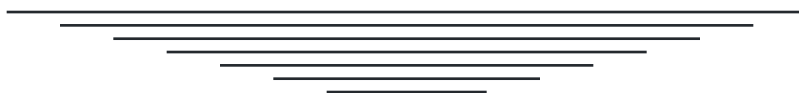

Will not disclosing his marital status else where be termed as misrepresentation in the EE program?/blockquote>

This is kinda dicey but here's my bit.

Truth is that, you can not really mention him without implicating him. He's still married and filing for Green card in USA. Surely Canada will know once he submits his PCC or he has not stayed Yankee for 6 straight months?

If you do not want to divorce him, then make it a legal seperation while you apply as single.. All the best..
